

TELEGRAPHISTS' UNION.

Operators Again Uniting to Resist the Western Union.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The commercial telegraphists of the United States are engaged in forming a national brotherhood. A committee call has just been issued for a meeting of representatives in Kansas City on Sept. 2 to form such an organization. For some time correspondence has been going on in relation to the subject, and interest is being manifested in all parts of the country. O'Reilly, who took so active a part in the great telegraphists' strike in 1889, and who is now an assistant editor of the Knights of Labor Journal, is in the city conferring with New York leaders on the subject. He was seen by a reporter and spoke warmly of the project. He said that telegraphists had either to organize or submit to the Western Union, which, he alleges, has pursued a policy of reductions during the last five years. He says that the average salary of a telegraph operator is less than $30 per month, and that the amount necessary to maintain a decent existence has to be eked out by extra work, at the cost of health, comfort, independence and even life.

A telegraph operator, he said, was a highly skilled workman. Not only must he know how to send a message, but he must be an encyclopedia of information, so that he can intelligently deal with all subjects. No operator should be required to work, O'Reilly thinks, more than eight hours a day, and first-class operators should receive not less than $100 per month. The operators were organized to maintain their standing as a profession, not to threaten and intimidate, but to educate. They realized that the only way to gain the respect of the companies is to maintain a solid, organized front.

O'Reilly said that a meeting was held in Philadelphia on Sunday, at which delegates were elected to attend the convention at Kansas City, and that meetings were held on the same day to discuss the subject and elect delegates in New York, Boston, Jersey City, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Richmond, Nashville, New Orleans, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago and other cities and towns. Local unions have been formed in twenty-seven cities already, and after the convention six commissioned organizers will be in the field. The national association will invite all these and make a powerful organization. O'Reilly will start for Kansas City at the end of the week to attend and take active part in the national convention. A secret meeting of the New York operators will be held on Friday night.

A BOYCOTT DENIED.

Homestead Laborers Claim Butcher Dorr Was Not Notified.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 24.—There is much expressed indignation among members of the advisory committee over the charge that they boycotted Butcher Adolph Dorr, and has begun to persecute the wives of Homesteaders who are working in the mill. Acting Chairman Crawford said: "We would be fools to render ourselves liable to suits for conspiracy by such action as the alleged boycott, and beside it is untrue. No member of the committee ever waited upon Dorr. Nor do we persecute women. I can truthfully say that we know of no committee calling upon the butcher to warn him not to sell to certain parties. We can stand fast, but the story has been sent out designed to injure us."

Also, for the board, desire to state in reply to Superintendent Potter's statement that many persons cannot get back in the mill, that many of us will not return as long as he is manager. It is reported that a number of the non-union men are forming a military company and that they will ask for a charter. This action is the result of an apprehension which exists among the men that violence will be offered them by the strikers and locked-out men when the militia leave finally.

There is little change in the situation from the standpoint of the locked-out men. They are waiting with characteristic firmness and confidence. For over a week not one has made application for work or even hinted his desire to return under present conditions.

DOWN TO THREE CENTS.

River Operators Lower the Price for Mining Coal.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—The river coal operators have agreed to reduce the price of mining from 31 to 28 cents. The meeting of the Coal exchange yesterday brought out a large attendance, and with but several exceptions the operators were unanimous in voting to ask the reduction of the price. A number of the minority will abide by the decision and also request the lowering of the rate.

The chances for a strike among the 10,000 operatives engaged in the river mines in this district, the coal, the coal will be inaugurated Sept. 1, are about equal. Many of the operators expect their men to go out, others say that the recent defeat of the railroad miners and the justice of the demand will deter them.

COLUMBUS' FACE.

Design for the Fair Coins to Be Made from the Best Picture Extant.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—The mint societies have been greatly inconvenienced in preparing a design for the Columbian exposition souvenir coins, owing to their inability to secure a representative picture of Columbus. It was the original intention to work from a painting by Sottu, but, owing to the characteristics of the face, which were not in keeping with the generally accepted appearance of the man, a more perfect portrait was sought. The matter was referred to the mint bureau at Washington, and an etching by Focillon was forwarded, from which the model will be made. The portrait has been copied from the etching and is now in possession of Dr. De Orchi, of Como. It was previously the property of Paolo Giovio at Como, and remained in his collection for several centuries, going thence by bequest to Dr. De Orchi. This Columbus portrait was always reputed to be a true original, and it hung on the walls of Giovio's home during the lifetime of Columbus and while the two were intimate friends. It has been various times attributed to Sebastian Luciani, to Antonio Razon and to Lorenzo Lotto, but it is now absolutely established to be the work of Bartholomew Scordo. Both the French and American writers have expressed the belief that this is the only authentic portrait.

SUMMARY VENGEANCE.

An Arkansas Negro Lynched for Assaulting a Young Girl.

GUERDON, Aug. 23.—It has just been learned here that a burly negro, who recently perpetrated an outrage upon 16-year-old Nellie Wilkes, has been summarily dealt with by a mob. His name was Bowles. He fled after the commission of the crime. A mob at once organized, kept not on his trail, and finally captured him in a farm house where he was, by force, obtaining food. He was taken to the scene of the deed, where he acknowledged his crime. He was at once strung up to a tree, several shots fired into his body and the mob dispersed.

TROTTER EAST AND WEST.

Dallas at the Heels of Robert J. at Hartford—Another Record Broken.

HARTFORD, Aug. 23.—Nearly 3,500 people saw the Grand Circuit races at Charter Oak park yesterday, a most encouraging attendance for the first day. The weather was pleasant, the track in splendid condition and the racing was interesting. All three of the races were won by the favorites. C. J. Hamlin captured two of them. His Nightingale won the 2:10 trotting race and his Robert J. won the free-for-all pace. The third race, the 2:25 trot, was won by Darlington, after that horse had been knocked out of the first heat by an accident.

Darlington broke at the first quarter in the first heat. Guy Miller, the driver, tried to get out of the way of Josie Sheridan, but in some way they got together, and Josie's foot struck the wheel of Darlington's sulky. The wheel was wrecked off. Miller was pitched out and the horse was thrown down. Vandenberg, who was driving Josie Sheridan, had to bring her to a standstill. Only Rose Filkins and Shipman made the race. Charles Forest was taken from the track before the heat was started on account of his bad behavior in scoring. As the accident seemed due to no one's carelessness and bad intent, both horses were permitted by the judges to start in the next heat.

Grant's Abdallah lowered the track's record by taking the third heat of the pacing race in 2:11. The best previous performance on the Charter Oak track was by Little Brown Jug, about ten years ago, when the mile was done in 2:11. Many of the finishes were close and exciting, and there was an apparent effort on the part of all the drivers to win if possible. The summaries:

Mail Carriers' Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 24.—The National Mail Carriers' convention is in session in this city. Several hundred were present at the first session. One of the most important features of the convention is the advisability of the insertion of the insurance features. The carriers will also urge another grade—to $1,300—and the extension of the civil service rules to all postoffices having a free carrier system.

He Caught It in the Lock-Up.

TIPPER, O., Aug. 24.—A suit was filed in the Common Pleas court yesterday by Andrew W. Wiley, a respectable and aged citizen of New Riegel, for $1,000 damages, against Mayor Focht and Marshal Peter Gosche, of the village, on account of disease contracted while imprisoned in the village lock-up. At March.

Holmes and Wayne Will Have Candidates.

WOOSTER, O., Aug. 23.—[Special.]—This county is likely to have two candidates for congress—John McSweeney and Mr. Chiles. A respectable and aged citizen of New Riegel, for $1,000 damages, against Mayor Focht and Marshal Peter Gosche, of the village, on account of disease contracted while imprisoned in the village lock-up. At March.

A Big Catch.

Attorney Allen Cook returned last evening from a week's fishing at Congress Lake. He says he had a fine catch, and the trouble was to catch anything. A party of Randolph young men came down however, and caught the finest string of bass ever taken out of the water. Mr. Cook says they had thirty-six bass weighing in the aggregate one hundred pounds.

My daughter says your Swamp-Root has done her more good than all the medicine she has ever used. She has taken hundreds of dollars' worth. It has cured me of kidney and urinary difficulties. JONATHAN NORRIS, Wolf, Ohio.

A Funeral in Chilly.

In this queer country there is a funny side even to funerals. The other day a sound of music attracted me to the window, and what do you think I saw? A phoebus hued person (person?) carrying on his head and outstretched hands a plank about five feet long and on the plank a dead child. The little corpse was that of a girl apparently about five years old. It was attired in a short frock of red calico, the legs inclosed in coarse white hose "a world too wide for the shrunk shank," no shoes, the jet black hair smoothly braided and crowned by a jaunty wreath of paper roses and the cheeks horribly discolored with vermilion to simulate the hue of health.

The plank bearer was closely followed by two women, evidently the mother and grandmother of the deceased, and they walked with an air of conscious importance, as became those who have furnished extra angel to "another little angel," as here a dead child is universally called, to swell the heavenly host. Behind the women marched two men, playing with might and main, one on a fiddle, the other on a guitar, each in tune of his own regard for the other's performance, and the rear was brought up by a dozen or more laughing and chattering men, women and children, most of whom gave a dubitable evidence of unwise generosity on somebody's part in the way of chicha, the Chilian low class intoxicant.

They were on the way to the Pantheon to inter the "little angel," over whom they had been dancing and drinking for several days, and which possibly had been lent once or twice in the meantime to friends who were not so fortunate as to have a corpse in the family—Valparaiso Letter.

Where the Colonel Had Him.

Colonel Sterreppia is a newspaper man and a great reader of standard matter. Not long ago he met a young fellow who beat him out on a question of Bible history and the colonel sought to get even.

"That boy of yours," he said to the young fellow's father, "is a bright one, but I guess I'downed him."

"How?" inquired the father with a good deal of curiosity.

"Well, I went home after he flamed me out on that Biblical point and read up the Peloponnesian war—did you ever hear of the Peloponnesian war?"

The father said he had, and the colonel looked disappointed.

"And," he resumed, "I came at him on the next time I had a chance and, by thunder, sir, he told me he had not only heard of it but had studied about it in his school. Say, did you ever hear of the Peloponnesian war when you was a boy?"

The old gentleman confessed that he had, and again the colonel looked hurt.

"Yes," he went on, "but he not only said that, but he asked me if I knew that Lincoln had got some of the ideas of his famous Gettysburg speech from the orations delivered on that war, and that's where I had him, exclaimed the colonel with a broad smile of triumph.

"How?" inquired the father.

"Why, sir," and the colonel's face glowed, "I know all about that county in Illinois where Lincoln got his learning, and there ain't a man in it who ever heard of the Peloponnesian war."

The colonel's argument was irresistible and the father had to confess it.—Detroit Free Press.

Increasing Longevity.

"The increasing and ten years allotted to man will yet be increased to twice that number," was the prediction made by Dr. Charles Hinkle. "Instead of the world growing weaker and wiser, the old men put it, it is growing weaker and stronger. The average length of life is steadily increasing. In the days of good Queen Bess women were considered past at thirty, and few men distinguished themselves in statecraft, science or literature after passing five and sixty. Now a woman is in the heyday of her beauty at thirty, and the ripest fruits of genius are frequently picked at threescore and ten. Gladstone, Bismarck and Blaine are fair examples of that green and fruitful old age so frequent in these days. Yet science is but in its infancy. As it progresses the waste of life and energy will be gradually curtailed.

"While the fountain of youth sought by that interesting old crank, Ponce de Leon, will probably never be found, while man will probably never discover the secret of remaining an ever young Apollo, nor woman that of being as attractive at sixty as at sixteen, I firmly believe that the average life will yet be raised from thirty-five to seventy; that the day will come when a man will not be considered a back number when he has reached his 100th birthday."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Homely American Currency.

"The paper money of the United States is the least handsome in the world," said the proprietor of a money exchange. "That is because this government depends entirely upon the intricacy and elaborateness of the designs on its notes and certificates for protection against counterfeiters. In foreign countries, on the other hand, much effort is directed to making their currency beautiful with pictures and arabesques 'in the classical style. Not only are the results more to look at, but they serve their chief purpose better, for any practical engraver will tell you that real art work on a bill is far more difficult to imitate than any purely mechanical effect, no matter how complicated the latter may be made by the geometric lathe and other devices."—Washington Star.

Bacteria in Ice.

A good many of the bacteria which are found in all natural surface waters are killed or killed by the water freezing, but as many as 10 per cent, and often more, may remain alive. A large number of studies on this subject have shown that the bubbly and snowy ice is apt to contain many more bacteria than the clear ice does. These bacteria are likely to have no influence whatsoever upon the health of the ice consumer if the ice has been formed on bodies of water which are clear and pure. But ice which is formed on sewage polluted water, or which water may contain disease producing bacteria, and hence be very dangerous for domestic use.—T. Mitchell Prudden in Harper's.

Household Duties.

Mr. Nicellio—Ah, how do you, my little man! Ben helping your sister, I suppose. She told me she would be busy for a little while with some household duties.

Little Man—Yes, I tried to help, but I wasn't much use.

"No," she wanted me to carry some water, but I couldn't carry much at a time, and it takes a lot to get ink out of carpet, specially red ink."

Red Ink.

"Yes," she always writes her letters to Mr. Warmheart in red ink. He says it reminds him of the way she blushes when he kisses her."—Good News.
